Working with Vulnerable Children

This life changing new course looks at how we support children who are struggling. If you have ever worked with a child that has low confidence, negative or aggressive behaviour or seems frightened by the world, this course is for you. Many children find life to be difficult, especially if they have been through trauma, grief or have insecure attachments. They may have an overwhelmingly negative experience of home life or be struggling with low confidence and self-esteem leading to anxiety and negative behaviour. They may even be suffering from a lack of nurturing due to excessive screen time. This course shows how positive adults can have the most profound and life-changing effect on those children. The course shows that by understanding the emotional and biochemical damage of anxiety we can begin to support children to heal. By focusing on Play, Nurturing and Curiosity the course gives a range of practical experiences to help children find themselves again.
